

Severe Storms This Afternoon and Evening

Main Threats:
Ping pong ball size hail

Damaging Winds to 60 mph

---

Main Threats:
Tennis ball size hail

Damaging Winds to 60 mph

Tornado Possible

Published on: 05/28/2019 at 4:44AM

Weather Message of the Day:

Supercell thunderstorms capable of producing very large hail, damaging wind gusts and a couple of tornadoes may develop this afternoon and evening. Flash flooding may also occur as soils remain saturated.

Important Forecast Changes:

No significant changes from previous report

Thunderstorm Timing on Tuesday

Timing

Magnitude

Location

Timing: Some morning or early afternoon storms will be possible but more vigorous storms are expected to develop along and east of a dryline during the afternoon and early evening hours.

Magnitude: Supercell thunderstorms will be capable of producing hail up to the size of tennis balls, wind gusts of 60-70 mph and very high rainfall rates. A couple of tornadoes will be possible.

Location: Storms will develop along and east of a dryline which is expected along a line from near Salina to Hutchinson to Attica after 3 PM.

Weather Message of the Day

Supercell thunderstorms capable of producing very large hail, damaging wind gusts and a couple of tornadoes may develop this afternoon and evening. Flash flooding may also occur as soils remain saturated

IMPACTS:

- Tornadoes may destroy property, infrastructure and cause injuries and deaths.
- Creeks and streams will overflow banks causing flooding of adjacent roads and land.
- Poor drainage streets will flood quickly.
- Damaging winds may uproot or damage trees
- Damaging winds may blow down utility poles
- Hail and high winds may damage roofs, windows and siding.
- Large hail and damaging winds may damage crops.
- Damage is likely to mobile homes, roofs and outbuildings.

For more information about this event, monitor our Severe Weather Decision Support page here: <http://www.weather.gov/ict/embrief>

Building a Weather-Ready Nation

